

Baobao™

醉江南

Bao, dumplings and wontons are a staple food in most of Asia. In China, bao has an ancient history and still today are enjoyed in many varieties. They can be found on almost every street corner especially during breakfast. If you have never tried them, we highly recommend to try our Sheng Jian Bao and Xiao Long Bao. Hopefully this inspires you to visit China, and if you travel to a city such as Shanghai, you are sure to recognize these dishes.

包 Bao

1

生煎包 $12.95/6 pcs

Pan Fried Pork Buns (Sheng Jian Bao)

Chef's specialty bao. A fluffy dough bun, pan fried so the bottom is crispy. Filled with a flavorful pork meatball with ginger and scallion. These have been enjoyed in Shanghai since the early 1900s where the Shanghainese will typically buy them from street vendors for breakfast. Must try!

包 Bao

2

小笼汤包 $10.95/6 pcs Soup Dumplings (Xiao Long Bao)

Steamed pork and soup encased in a thin dumpling skin, served in a bamboo steamer. A traditional dish that dates back to the early 1800s and is enjoyed today all over the world. Be really careful- the soup is hot inside. Chinese will recommend to bite a tiny hole in the skin, suck the soup out, dip the rest of the dumpling in the vinegar, then devour this delicious treat!
